Musashino city

Musashisakai

Area Map

Welcome to Musashisakai

With the completion of elevation of JR Chuo Line and the development to connect the north and south areas, this district has greatly changed. The impact of multiple universities and cultural facilities make this area evolve as an education area where cultural and academic activities flourish in many ways. The area is surrounded by residential neighborhoods, bordering Koganei Park to the West.

Best Spots and Public Facilities

Agriculture Fureai Park

MAP
C-1

This new, urban-style park brings agriculture into a park space. Local citizens conduct hands-on agricultural experiences and events in the park, which also features a relocated and restored nagayamon building thought to date back to the late Edo Period.

Furuse Park

A-2

This atmospheric Japanese-style park is thickly covered with pine and cherry trees around its pond. Visitors can enjoy Shoroan, an authentic tearoom reconstructed from the summer home of the Furuse family built at the start of the Showa Era. The room is used now for sado (tea ceremony), kado (flower arrangement), kukai (haiku poetry gatherings), and more.

Kizuki Taisha Shrine

E-4

In the early Edo period, Matsudaira Naomasa, who maintained a daimyo summer residence on the site, built Kizuki-Taisha Shrine (currently Izumo-Taisha Shrine). Dedicated to the gods Daikokuten and Ebisu, this is a shrine of good fortune and matchmaking. And the Fujizuka (Miniature Mt. Fuji) built in the precincts of the shrine is the second highest in Tama region.

Doppo-no-Mori Forest (Sakaishanya Green Area)

C-1

This park offers one of the few remaining scenes of thick coppices within the city. With its connections to the novel Musashino by Meiji Period literary master Doppo Kunikida, the southern half of the park is known to locals as "Doppo-no-Mori" (Doppo Forest).

Kannon-in Temple

C-3

Matsudaira Naomasa built this temple to Kannon at his daimyo summer residence. It later became a temple of the Soto sect. Visitors can experience Zen meditation at the temple.

Musashino Swing Hall

D-3

This concert hall is fully soundproofed by a dual structure. The multi-purpose room is perfect for dances and reception. Conference rooms that can be used as exhibition spaces are also available.

Musashino Furusato History Museum

MAP
A-3

This museum features an exhibition room where visitors can learn about the history of Musashino, as well as exhibit rooms for themed exhibits, a "citizens' space" which can be used for historic and cultural educational activities, and collection rooms for the storage and preservation of historic official documents, folk materials, and other valuable items.
